Portfolio Manager Commentary

Following a sharp curtailment of mining activity early in the year due to the coronavirus pandemic, the global materials and mining sector commenced showing signs of renewed life as lockdown conditions eased towards the end of the second quarter.

Early in the first quarter, concerns over the spread of the coronavirus triggered a sharp sell-off in the stock market, leading to a decline in the price of gold, negating the safe haven status typically attributed to the yellow metal. Although this was partially due to investors selling gold to cover losses made in other segments of the market, the price of gold, silver and other base metals fell on the back of reduced demand, particularly from China, which at the onset of the pandemic was the most affected country. Incidentally, China is one of the world's largest buyers of gold and base metals.

However, in June gold regained strength and crossed the $1800-mark for the first time since 2011, fuelled in part by concerns over a sharp spike in coronavirus cases in some US states and by substantial central bank stimulus which boosted the non-interest bearing metal. Vast amounts of global stimulus to shield economies from the ravages of Covid-19 have pushed real yields below zero and have consequently made bullion more attractive.

Concurrently, copper climbed higher in the second quarter on nascent signs of a recovery in Chinese demand, while the dramatic spread of the coronavirus in top mining regions in South America, particularly Brazil, fuelled fears of a major disruption to supply.

In April, gold and platinum group metals producer Sibanye-Stillwater, one of the Fund's largest holdings, received approval to commence limited mining operations in South Africa, subject to the implementation of agreed protocols to address COVID-19 related health and safety risks.<sup>i</sup> Earlier in March, the company, the world's largest primary producer of platinum and rhodium, cautioned that the suspension of its operations will adversely impact production at the SA mines and advised shareholders that its production for 2020 may differ from previous guidance.<sup>ii</sup>

The rising price of gold resulted in AngloGold Ashanti more than trebling its first quarter cash flow from operating activities and enabling it to boost its available liquidity to more than $2-billion. The company, one of the Fund's largest holdings, reported that its diverse portfolio of 14 mines in nine countries helped to limit the impact of Covid-19-related stoppages in the first quarter.<sup>iii</sup>

Throughout the period, the manager periodically used a covered call strategy to add value to the portfolio. Although the manager has the option of writing covered calls on up to 33% of the portfolio, volatile market conditions did not permit the continuous application of the strategy.

Performance Attribution

At the end of June, the Fund held its largest exposure to Newmont Corp, which was the second largest contributor to its performance for the 6-month period ending June 30. The best performing stock was Gold Fields ADR, with Sibanye Gold ADR ranking third.

5 Management expense ratio ("MER") is based on total expenses plus harmonized sales tax (excluding distributions, commissions and other portfolio transaction costs) for the stated period and is expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net asset value during the period.

6 The trading expense ratio represents total commissions and other portfolio transaction costs expressed as an annualized percentage of average daily net assets during the period.

7 The Fund's portfolio turnover rate indicates how actively the Fund's portfolio manager trades its portfolio investments. A portfolio turnover rate of 100% is equivalent to the Fund buying and selling all of the securities in its portfolio once in the course of the period. The higher the Fund's portfolio turnover rate in a period, the greater the trading costs payable by the Fund in the period, and the greater the chance of an investor receiving taxable capital gains in the period. There is not necessarily a relationship between a high turnover rate and the performance of a fund.

Past Performance

The performance information does not take into account sales, redemption, distribution, income taxes payable by any unitholder or other optional charges that, if applicable, would have reduced returns or performance. The performance information shown assumes that all distributions made by the investment Fund in the periods shown were reinvested in additional securities of the investment fund. How the Fund has performed in the past does not necessarily indicate how it will perform in the future.
